Nazis' Balkan Move Might Be Invasion Feint

British, Unfooled, Continue Blasting German Cities and Coast

LONDON (AP)—British sources disclosed Saturday that the RAF's latest attacks on Germany and Nazi-occupied territory are "active defense tactics" based partly on the suspicion that Hitler's Balkan movements may merely mask an invasion attempt.

The British, they said, were mindful of Hitler's custom of making bold moves in mid-March and observed also that the full moon and spring tides favor an invasion by sea.

German raiders poured bombs on the Clyde Side shipping district of Glasgow, Scotland, in a violent assault from dusk to dawn, while British warplanes blasted at the west.

Germany industrial centers of Gelsenkirchen and Dusseldorf, and oil targets in Rotterdam, Holland.

The Nazi raiders after ranging wide over England in the third successive night of the stepped-up air war, returned Saturday to strike at a north Midlands village where 11 persons were killed and 6 houses demolished.

A northeast English city also was attacked heavily overnight for the first time in the war.

In the Glasgow raid, bombs of the moonlight raiders sent one 40-family tenement in that section tumbling down, burying many in wreckage.

Hundreds in the working class area were left homeless and rescue workers still dug in the debris Saturday.

7 Aldermen in Unanimous Vote for Purchase

Gives City 600-Acre Airport Site at Land Cost of $12,000

The Hope city council overrode Mayor W. S. Atkins' veto of the final airport purchase project at a special meeting in the mayor's office at 8 o'clock Saturday morning.

The motion to override the veto carried by a unanimous vote of the seven aldermen attending. J. R. Williams being absent. Aldermen present were: E. P. Young, Syd E. McMath, C. E. Cassidy, Ross Spears, L. N. Garner, Frank Nolan, and Jesse Brown.

Also present at the special meeting were: Mayor Atkins, City Attorney E. F. McFaddin and City Clerk and Recorder T. R. Billingsley.

Mayor Atkins announced Friday his veto of the second-half purchase of airport land, which project involved the city's buying about 195 acres from Miss Miss Fay Briant and R. M. Briant for $30 an acre. The mayor's veto message was published in full in yesterday's Star.

Airport Committee

Acting at the request of the airport committee of the council, Aldermen Cassidy, McMath and Young, the mayor called the special meeting of the council Saturday morning to consider action on his veto.

Option on the Briant land would have expired Saturday night.

The first purchase of land for the airport was made some weeks ago when the City of Hope bought 400 acres from Moore & Carter for $15 an acre.

The combined Moore & Carter and Briant properties would give the city an airport of approximately 600 acres lying along the Washington highway, at the end of the pavement, about a mile and a half north of Hope. Consultations have been made with federal agencies regarding acceptability of the site for airport purposes, and with the understanding that government help would be obtained in developing it on terms of which remain to be disclosed.

$12,000 Worth of Land

Purchase of the complete site represents a contribution by the City of Hope of approximately $12,000 toward a modern airport. The government requires ownership of land before any federal money can be spent on improvements such as drainage, grading, and construction of runways.

Council members said Saturday that with passage of the purchase resolution over the mayor's veto the only remaining matters to clear up before final purchase of the Briant properties is a survey of the land and examination and approval of title.

Roosevelt to Allay Fears in Radio Speech

Will Not Give Away Enough Ships to Unbalance U. S. Fleet

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt, informed legislators said Saturday, will tell the American people in his radio address Saturday night that he has no intention of weakening this country's fleet in order to help Britain and other nations under the 7-billion-dollar lease-lend program.

These sources expressed belief that the chief executive would make a rather definite statement on the subject of releasing naval vessels and would assure the public that under no circumstances would the U. S. navy be placed in an unbalanced state.

The prediction also was made that he would call for speed and more speed in ship production and make a new appeal for a united nation behind the defense program. Some mention might be made about strikes in defense industries, it was reported.

Mr. Roosevelt will speak at 8:30 p. m. CST while attending the annual banquet of the White House Correspondents association. His half-hour address, first ever to be made before the newsmen's organization, will be broadcast over all major networks through more than 500 stations and will be transmitted abroad in six languages.

More than 600 persons will be in the president's immediate audience, including Secretary Hull and other cabinet members, supreme court justices, and Lord Halifax, British ambassador.

Congressional sources said Roosevelt would endeavor to set at rest contentions made during the debate on the lease-lend bill that he might give away large portions of the fleet.

It was said he probably would give assurances that any units of the navy transferred to Britain would not be vital to maintenance of a balanced fleet and would be replaced with newer and better ships later on.

Emmet Negro Stabbed, Dies

Nevada Officers Hold Suspected Murderer

PRESCOTT, Ark.—Elgin Hawthorne, 18 year old Emmet negro, was being held in the Prescott jail Saturday as the suspected murderer of Jeffrey White, 18, also of Emmet, who was stabbed to death 9 miles east of Prescott Thursday night.

Hawthorne told officers that, after stabbing White, he walked to his home at Emmet, arriving about daylight. He also said that White threw rocks at him as he walked away.

Investigation showed that the two negroes had been working on an NYA project and were living together in a house near Upchurch school community. It was revealed that the stabbing followed an argument over a bed.

Deputy Sheriff Andy Ober arrested Hawthorne at Emmet.

Big Demand for Skilled-Labor

Employment Office to Aid Workers in Getting Jobs

LITTLE ROCK—The newspapers throughout the nation are carrying statements from the Federal Security Administration that Paul V. McNutt, Defense Production Director, William Krudson, Defense Labor Director, Sidney Hillman and other leading individuals in national defense, giving information about the nation-wide program for registration of workers with skills and experiences available for national defense industries. The national program is scheduled for March 15 through April 15, but will continue until a satisfactory registration of the necessary number of skilled workers in essential defense occupational classifications has been completed.

"There are a number of points connected with this program that are of particular interest to the people of Hempstead county," said Blaine Ellington, manager of the Hope office of the Arkansas State Employment Service.

"One of the most important is that if Arkansas can show a sufficient supply of available workers in the desired skills and crafts, that should be the means of inducing the location of national defense industries and plants in Arkansas. This would mean much to the state and all business interests in the State, as well as furnishing jobs for a great many of our present unemployed. For that reason, it should be considered a patriotic duty for every citizen of Hempstead county to do everything in his power to see that every available worker with experience and skill in crafts needed in national defense industries, who is not using such skill in his present job, register at once at the Hope Employment Service Office.

2 Boys on Bike Escape Death

Struck Riding Unlighted Bicycle on 67 at Night

Two Hope boys about 9 years old riding "double" on a bicycle up Highway 67 escaped serious injury Friday night when they were struck by an automobile driven by A. H. Washburn, publisher of The Star.

The accident occurred just outside of Emmet at about 7 o'clock.

Mr. Washburn, driving alone, picked up the boys, Harold Parks and Howard Key, both of North Louisiana street, Hope, and brought them to their homes here. Dr. L. M. Lile said Harold Parks sustained bruise and scratches, and Howard Key had a slight concussion, but that neither boy required hospitalization.

The wheel was demolished, and was brought back to Hope by a Mr. Collier.

The accident occurred between the bottom of the big hill south of Emmet and the curve on which the highway enters the town. Another car, traveling south, turned this curve and threw its lights toward Mr. Washburn's car, who was going north. He said that when the reflection of the other car's lights cleared away he saw the two boys on an unlighted bicycle traveling up his traffic lane in the same direction he was going. He twisted his car over into the left-hand traffic lane, striking the bicycle only with the tip of the right fender.

The boys told him they had started to bicycle from Hope to Prescott.

Cave City Five Beats Champs

Willisville Girls Move Up in State Tourney

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP)—Cave City an invited team from the Ozark foothills, began to wear its welcome out Friday in the state A division high school basketball tournament by trouncing the defending Champion Jonesboro Hurricane 54 to 41 in the first quarter-final contest.

The lanky Cavemen who walloped Oxford, a pre-tourney favorite, in the first round came from far behind to beat Jonesboro. Nelse Thompson took scoring honors for the victors with 17 points.

Jonesboro played without the presence of Retiring Coach Clarence Geis who is ill. Jonesboro was district four champion.

Alma, sparked by Jim Bearden and Junior Carson, put on a hot rally in the final two minutes to eliminate Bodcaw, district nine champion, 47 to 37.

Alma, district one champion, will meet Cave City in Saturday's semi-finals.

Carroll Griffith, with 22 points, paced North Little Rock to a 53-33 demolition over Magnolia, and Hermitage put down a third quarter rally to oust Blytheville, an invited team, 51-33.

Willisville Moves Up

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Flippin sextet bounced the Defending Champion Chidester team out of the state AAU women's basketball tournament here Friday night 27 to 17.

Flippin and Chidester, participating in the tourney's high school division, opened the quarter-final round with a torrid game that saw Flippin smother Chidester's touted offense.

Willisville defeated Guy 45 to 36.

In the independent division the Jonesboro club won from Laman furniture team of Little Rock 19 to 1 and Leird Lumber company of Little Rock defeated Deep Rock Oilers, Little Rock, 29-23.

Five Divisions, Artillery and Tanks, Landed

Neutral Diplomats Report Transfer of Troops From Africa

BELGRADE (AP)—Nearly 100,000 soldiers from Britain's imperial forces, with shiploads of munitions, artillery, tanks and other mechanical equipment—enough for five divisions—have been landed at five Greek mainland ports, it was reliably reported Saturday.

This report first came from neutral diplomats, and then was unofficially confirmed by British diplomatic circles in three southeastern European capitals. Correspondents were told privately by the British that the reports "probably are well founded."

Nevertheless, it was said that an official denial of the aid, expected within the next 12 hours.

Ready to blast at the British and their Greek allies, German forces in Bulgaria were reported about the same time to have whelled out hundreds of fighters, bombers and transport planes on their new landing fields—ready for instant action.

Berlin professed to have no confirmation of the report that the British have landed en force on Greek soil.

Reports of the British expedition—a vast multiplication of the aid, which the RAF has been giving the Greeks—came from neutral diplomats, again.

Near Critical Stage

German critics in the Yugoslav capital declared that the Balkan crisis was "reaching a critical stage."

Concurrently, DNB, official German news agency, reported from Sofia that Turkey at last had replied to Hitler's offer of March 4 to look after Turkey's interests and well being.

The reply, over the signature of President Tuncel, was still en route to Hitler and the contents still were undisclosed.

The Turkish press however, declared that Turkey's policy—her allegiance to Great Britain and her attitude toward the German occupation of Bulgaria—remained unchanged.

Reports of the British landing in Greece, apparently marked the end of any hope Germany might have had of forcing Greece to sue for peace under the threat of German forces massed on Bulgaria's Greek and Turkish frontiers.

Yugoslavia Hesitates

Yugoslavia, important in the Balkan lineup because she offers another avenue for any German attack on Greece, still shied from aligning herself with the Axis.

She was dicker for lighter terms than Bulgaria got.

The story of the British landings in Greece was brought to Belgrade at noon Saturday by diplomats arriving from Athens.

One diplomat declared he would take oath and sign a sworn statement that his facts were correct with reference to the landing of British troops in Greece, although for strategic reasons the British and Greeks are anxious to keep these movements secret.

Diplomatic mail arriving from Athens during the early afternoon told the same story.

Both sources told of five British ships daily arriving from Africa loaded with munitions and war material.

Already, they said, British troops have moved north into the Greek main land as far as a line running from the Aegean port of Volos across the island of Corfu.

Deanyville Has $3,000 Fire

Kiln of Lumber Company Burns Wednesday Night

Approximately 30,000 feet of lumber, most of which would have been ready for removal from the kiln this morning, burned. The damage was partially covered by insurance.

E. B. Cantley and Herbert Regan are owners of the company.

Another Link
Between the Americas

Time and circumstance are, drawing the two Americas closer together. Whatever happens as a result of the war in Europe, North and South America and the Central America that connects them, are being more closely united by new bonds almost every day.

Closing of European markets is forcing the American nations into trade relationships which might have taken years to develop under normal circumstances. Many of these require adjustments that may become permanent, will remain even when Europe comes back into the trade picture. For example, if the United States equips itself to smelt Bolivian tin, trade should become permanent in that metal between the two countries. If Brazil rehabilitates its rubber industry, this, too, might form a permanent trade link, no matter what happens in Europe or Asia. Many changes and adjustments are being made, which, once made and found good, will be hard to dislodge.

Quietly but steadily, Canada is moving into the orbit of the western hemisphere. Most Americans of the United States do not realize that even today, as a result of changes made after the World War, Canada is an independent nation.

That independence will be even more marked after this war, again regardless of its result. Now Canada puts an exclamation point after both its independence and its hemisphere interests by exchanging ministers with Argentina and Brazil; Chile and other South American countries are expected to follow suit. These direct diplomatic links to the southern part of the hemisphere will serve to bind Canada still closer to its destinies, and give her a more active part in shaping them.

It has long been proposed that Canada become one of the nations of the Pan-American Union. This, too,

Hunter is Flop, So Deer Demonstrates
KERRVILLE, Texas — (AP) — Dick Smith went through 45 days of the hunting season, killed no deer and spent $15.75 for wasted ammunition. After the season closed, he was driving toward Kerrville when a buck leaped a fence and landed against the side of his truck, breaking its neck. Smith couldn't even use the meat, since under the law it had to be turned over to the nearest game warden.

Starting when David O. Selznick purchased the screen rights to Margaret Mitchell's novel, the studio's research department had collected a library of books and documents pertaining to the Civil War period in Georgia and the rest of the South. Old newspapers from Atlanta, Macon, Augusta and Jonesboro, especially, were consulted. Diaries in the collection of Miss Mitchell, actual material used in writing the book, also were available.

When the picture was in early stages of preparation, Kurtz, leading historian of Atlanta, was named technical director. Assisted by his wife, Mrs. Annie Laurie Fuller Kurtz and Miss Susan Myrick, of the Macon Telegraph, he not only helped William Cameron Menzies, production designer, and Lyle Wheeler, art director, plan the street and buildings of the city, but consulted with the lead set decorator, Edward G. Boyle, regarding the objects displayed in towers, and the various signs and advertisements that gave the city and its streets the character of Atlanta in 1864.

Now, Are There Any Other Questions?

Starts Sunday at Saenger

Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh in "Gone with the Wind"

'Gone With the Wind' at Saenger Sun., Mon., Tues.

Aladdin rubbed his lamp—and a city of domes and minarets glittered before him. This modern miracle was performed in building one of the largest motion picture sets ever known for "Gone with the Wind." David O. Selznick's Technicolor production starring Clark Gable, Vivien Leigh, Leslie Howard and Olivia de Havilland. The picture, shown in its complete, full-length version, opens Sunday at the Saenger theatre—nothing cut but the price.

In one respect, Technical Director Wilbur G. Kurtz claims his job was more difficult than Aladdin's. The Arabian magician created a town without any design; Kurtz' city had to be the exact Atlanta of Civil War times, and because of the precision of the Technicolor camera, it had to look like a city of 13,000 that had been lived in for many years by the hardy pioneers of North Georgia. To accomplish this, more than mere carpentry and house painting were necessary.

Starting when David O. Selznick purchased the screen rights to Margaret Mitchell's novel, the studio's research department had collected a library of books and documents pertaining to the Civil War period in Georgia and the rest of the South. Old newspapers from Atlanta, Macon, Augusta and Jonesboro, especially, were consulted. Diaries in the collection of Miss Mitchell, actual material used in writing the book, also were available.

the blockaded State of Georgia, after the attrition of war had taken its toll.

To aid in designing the streets, Kurtz had access to the public records of the city. He made copies of all the maps, and enlarged them to scale for the hardy pioneers of North Georgia. In the records of the Atlanta Historical Society were found original plans of many buildings.

Scotty Rapped as a Cheat

Federal Judge Hits Famed Desert Prospector

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — (AP) — Federal Judge Benjamin Harrison said Friday Walter Scott, famous desert prospector known as Death Valley Scotty, "stands here as a confessed cheat."

His remark was made after the defense rested in the trial of a suit Julian M. Gerard, New York investment banker, brought against Scott for an accounting on an old grubstake claim agreement. Gerard seeks a 22½ per cent interest in everything Scotty has taken out of the rocks since 1907.

"I want to hear from the plaintiff what he has established," said Judge Harrison, directing his remarks to Gerard's lawyer. "I'd like to hear what we have to quarrel about. There has been no evidence here indicating any property out there that Scott has an interest in. You don't expect me to believe his statement that he has buried gold certificates and gold ore. Scott stands here a confessed cheat. He took Gerard for a cleaning. I don't believe he has any property upon which an equity could act."

Gerard's lawyer said "If this is a fraud," they feel they should be entitled to a judgment.

"When a man from the desert goes to the city," said Judge Harrison, "they sell him the Woolworth building. All he gets out of it is a laugh. Earlier, Judge Harrison commented: "It looks like a man from the desert took the city man down the line."

Scotty told he took five or six thousand dollars in gambling winnings during the gold-rush days of Goldfield and invested them in mining stocks that returned $100,000. That was in 1908.

Scotty said he hid $10,000 gold certificates in a desert canyon cache he described as a "spendthrift trust" bank — "a tough place where, when you want it, by the time you get it, it's so hard to get out, you're out of the notion to spend it."

Two years later he said, a cloud-burst washed out the canyon, and he had been looking for the money ever since. Three years ago, he wrote the secretary of the Treasury about it and was told if he found it he could keep it. Whether he did remains a mystery.

Testimony Halted
Judge Harrison took the suit under submission for at least 25 days. He suggested that rather than hear any further testimony, which the defense offered to present, he would give the plaintiff time to submit briefs on the law as to whether they can show Gerard has any claim to property of Albert M. Johnson, Scotty's partner.

Scotty was not in court when the judge made his observations. When advised of them he commented: "If he thinks I am a fake, I wonder if he would accept an invitation to go out in the rocks on a mule with me. Maybe I might show him something."

Expansion of SS Program

Roosevelt Suggests Plan to Expand Program

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A suggestion that the social security program be expanded over a period of years to increase the number of beneficiaries and the money they receive came Friday from President Roosevelt.

He disclosed a formula for revising the method of distributing old age benefits to states was being prepared and indicated definite recommendations on both matters could be expected in a few weeks.

More than $2,000,000 social security accounts—unemployment, old age security, aid to widows and children and other phases of the program—are outstanding. Average monthly payment for retired workers is about $22.72; widows 65 years or older average about $20.45.

Answering press conference questions, Mr. Roosevelt said millions of old people not within the scope of social security should be, and old age benefits should be increased over a period of years so there would not be so much dependence on state grants.

The Social Security Board reported recently there were no "insuperable" obstacles to extending old age and survivor insurance to groups now exempted, including agricultural employment, domestic service in private homes, employment by non-profit educational and charitable organizations and federal and other public employees not already provided for.

The board said a study also was being made of the feasibility of extending the system to "at least a considerable part" of the self-employed population.

John Roosevelt Commissioned

President's Son Is Officer in U. S. Navy

WASHINGTON — (AP) — John Roosevelt, the president's youngest son, has received an officer's commission as ensign in the navy's Supply Corps, the navy disclosed Friday. He is the last of the president's four sons to be made an officer.

He was commissioned Thursday. He applied for a commission in the Reserve Corps about a year ago, officials said. The date for start of active service has not been set, but officials said his first assignment probably would be to the Finance and Supply School at Philadelphia.

Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., the president's third son, has received orders to duty aboard the destroyer Mayrant effective April 3. Commissioned more than two years ago in the Naval Reserve, he holds the rank of ensign, lowest in the naval official hierarchy.

James, the eldest, is a captain in the Marine Corps Reserve, serving a year's active duty. Elliott is a captain in the Air Corps Specialist Reserve on active duty at Wright Field.

Early Holiday Is of No Aid

Early Thanksgiving Fails to Help Business

NEW YORK — (AP) — President Roosevelt's proclamation of an early Thanksgiving in 1939 and 1940 failed to help New York's retail Christmas business, Commerce Commissioner George A. Sloan said in substance Friday in a report to Mayor LaGuardia.

Sloan based his conclusions on data furnished by 200 retail establishments and said incomplete data from 22 other cities showed similar results.

In the city survey, he said, firms provided data for the years 1936 and 1938, in which Thanksgiving was observed nationally on the traditional last Thursday of November, and 1939 and 1940 for which President Roosevelt proclaimed the holiday a week early as a means of increasing the nation's retail Christmas business.

New German Tire Filled With Holes

To Save Rubber

STUTTGART, Germany — (AP) — A new, air-cool automobile tire has been developed here by Alfred Spence, former German navy officer.

It is solid rubber with a honeycomb of holes or corridors which make it lighter in weight than some of the ordinary casings with inner tubes.

The holes are placed so that air constantly drives through them while the car is in motion. The air is taken in through a valve on the wheel.

Tests reported by the Stuttgart Technical High School gave some remarkable results. Where solid rubber heated to 450 Fahrenheit in an hour's run at 50 miles an hour carrying a load of 1600 pounds, the air-cooled tire under the same stresses didn't rise above 158 and its surface did not go above 150, the report said.

At 75 miles an hour, over a two-hour period with 1300 pounds, the interior temperature was not higher than 158 while the surface dropped to 146.3.

The inventor asserts the cooling prolongs the life of the tire.

Northland Gets an Airy Ferry

MILLINOCKET, Me. — (AP) — Nowadays if Johnny Boyle, cook in a lumber camp deep in Maine's north woods, runs out of nutmeg he can get more just about as quick as if he were working in a city restaurant.

All he has to do is telephone to the Great Northern Paper Company's supply depot and a ski-equipped airplane will drop down on the ice of a convenient lake or pond and make the delivery.

Besides taking the place of the "tote teams" that used to spend days hauling supplies to the camps, the plane ferries sick or injured lumberjacks to hospitals and timber-cruisers from one operation to another.

Nazis Corner Europe's Coal

Occupied Countries Furnish Essential Product

AP Feature Service

BERLIN—By occupying Poland, Holland, Belgium and northern France, Germany has become a dominating power in the coal industry.

The Nazi press estimates the country's present supply at 483,014,000,000 tons of hard coal, or more than half of the total estimated European deposits. Lignite is estimated at 88,091,000,000 tons or 80 to 85 per cent of the world supply.

Germany's success in the war has destroyed England as King Coal, the publication "Signal" commented recently, reporting:

"For the last few years the German iron industry has increased its steel production to a point where it surpasses by 50 per cent the steel production of England and France combined."

"Now Germany's economic sphere has also come to the fore, as far as coal production is concerned. Next to Germany and its occupied territories there is no noteworthy coal production in the European continent."

Coal mining areas which fell to Germany were the Polish enterprises of East Upper Silesia, Krakow and Olsa with a combined annual output of more than 50,000,000 tons. Holland workings producing 14,000,000 tons annually, and Belgian mines with an annual yield of about 30,000,000 tons.

Occupied France contains mines which will produce upwards of 30,000,000 tons of coal for German disposal during the remainder of the war.

Total Nazi output during 1940 recently was placed by Reichsmarschall Goering at 500,000,000 tons "or half the world production." He pointed out the vast new deposits now under German control also constitute an unlimited reserve of raw materials for the production of synthetic gasoline, oil, artificial fiber, fats and buna rubber.

WE, THE WOMEN

The Kiss-and-Run Husband Is Wife's Individual Problem

Dear members of Chicago's "Kisses for Breakfast Club": Aren't all 300 of you approaching from a wrong angle the problem of the husband who gobbles his breakfast while buried behind the morning newspaper, jams on his hat, gives his wife a quick goody peck and dashes off to work?

There may be 300 of you right there in Chicago who think the hit-and-run kiss is a matrimonial menace—but even so, it isn't a group problem. It's entirely an individual matter.

Instead of trying to combat the evil by organization, why don't you each fight it alone—and in your own way?

If you can't quite figure out how, here are some tips as a starter:

Let your husband get to bed at a decent hour, instead of keeping him up until one o'clock playing bridge with the Joneses so he'll wake up in a good humor.

Put on your make-up before you start the breakfast, even if you have to get up ten minutes earlier every morning of your life to be able to manage it.

Don't nag your husband into eating his oatmeal, if he hates the stuff, even if you are up on your vitamins.

Just because it's breakfast, don't set

YESTERDAY: Jammed into the subway, Beatrice notices a pretty girl, tries to seduce it and is happy. Suddenly, the lights go out. The car stops short. The girl suggests there may be danger of a riot. A trainman arrives, tells passengers to walk back to the station. Beatrice is terrified. "I can't see!"

FRIEND FROM HUNTINGTON'S

CHAPTER V

"OH, yes, you can!" the girl said cheerfully. "You can always do the things you have to do. Get hold of me, now. That's it. Jump to the catwalk. Come on, jump!"

Her teeth set, holding back her fear with an effort that was like warding off a physical blow, Beatrice clung to the girl. She closed her eyes for a tiny second. The narrow black catwalk, the shine of the tracks, the swift thought of how horrible it must be to be pushed off the platform—to be crushed under the wheels of an oncoming train! Then she jumped, and the jar of her fall heels on the wooden walk shocked through her. It brought common sense with it, and a quick, steady sanity.

"I'm all right," she said. "Sorry I was silly."

"Multiply it by a few thousand, honey, and you've got a riot," replied the girl. "I know mobs. Getting scared is like tuning in on the invasion from Mars. First thing you know, everybody else has hit the wave length, they're all scared too, and they're fighting and pushing and trampling and—well—" She laughed. "Keep your chin up."

The subway tunnel, under the river, was black and damp. White-faced people, feeling their way along to the station that must lie somewhere ahead, were silent and cautious. Beatrice felt, walking with them, her hand in the hand of the girl ahead, that they were like ghosts, threading their way through this blackness. Fear and danger squeezed their hearts.

"What's a million dollars now?" she thought oddly. "I'm the same as they are, here. We're all equals, now."

SHE never knew how long it was she walked in darkness, in that narrow file along the catwalk. Minutes. Hours. Perhaps a lifetime. All she knew was that some truth she had glimpsed, sitting in her car and watching the anonymous throng pushing past her, became more clear and more intelligible when in the subway.

"Now I understand it. I'm the same as they are, here. We're all equals, now."

"They're all people, like me. The same dreams and desires. The same hopes and fears. Money cushioned me away from them, but now the bars are down. I'm part of them and they're part of me. I like them!"

Hearteningly, the lights of a station ahead gleamed through the darkness at last. A little sigh of relief went up from the plodding humans, and the girl turned to Beatrice. "Land ahead!"

How gallant she was! The people ahead of them went faster. Soon she could see that they were going up a little stairway. They were on the platform. It was light, and they were calling encouragement.

"Simple, nothing to it!" a man cried. "Come on, only a few steps now!"

Beatrice and the girl with her mounted the steps, too. Relief and thanksgiving washed over Beatrice. They were safe.

The girl with whom she walked in the tunnel said, "Return to normal. Come on, let's get out into the fresh air!"

On the stairs going up to the street, Beatrice paused a moment. "I feel as though a steam roller had gone over me," she confessed.

The girl said, "Me, too. I hope there's a place around where we can get some coffee."

It was cold outside. Cold and dark, with a sharp wind that cut through Beatrice's thin jacket. But how good it was to be in the street again! How good to see the dark sky, and the little glinting stars! It was minutes before Beatrice noticed that the neighborhood in which she found herself was distinctly peculiar.

Old buildings, and dingy stores, and shabby men shuffling by on the pavement.

"An awful place to be marooned when you're dying for a cup of coffee," said the girl. "If it were beer, now. Or some smoke."

"Smoke?" "It's the standby of hobos and bums," grinned the girl. "Alky, split with water." She was looking about with eyes that recognized and tagged the street. "We'll have to walk a couple of blocks to get anything."

Somewhere in the tunnel Beatrice had turned her ankle. It was throbbing now. She became aware of the fact that she could not remember ever having walked so much, except in the country.

"My feet hurt," she said. The girl laughed. "You should talk! I stand on my feet all day, selling. If my feet didn't hurt, I'd get alarmed. They'd be turning to stone, see?"

"Selling?" Beatrice repeated. "You work in a store?"

"Huntington's. In the basement."

Beatrice caught her breath. This girl worked in Huntington's! She worked in the store which Grandfather had founded; the store which kept Beatrice on Park Avenue, the store which paid for her car and mink coat and the polo ponies for Clarence. What would she say, if she heard Beatrice telling her, "I own Huntington's?"

She wouldn't believe it, of course. "She'd stare at me," Beatrice thought swiftly, "and look around for a telephone so she could call an ambulance and have me taken to the lunatic asylum."

FOR a moment the coincidence seemed incredible. That out of a city with seven million people, Beatrice, who owned Huntington's, should have picked a subway car in which to ride and found herself side by side with a girl who worked in Huntington's. But in the next breath, she realized that it wasn't so startling, after all. Hundreds of girls worked in Huntington's. Girls who kept the stocks, girls who waited on customers, girls who modeled clothes, girls who ran the elevators, girls who typed the letters and answered the telephones and wrapped the packages.

"Where do you work?" the girl was asking.

Beatrice fought out of her reverie. "Oh! I—well—the fact is—I'm not working just now."

"I wondered," said the girl, amazingly. "That's a good-looking outfit you've got on. But chilly."

"My—my winter coat was—shabby." How fortunate she'd thought that out, right after she stuck her coat into the parcel locker!

"Doesn't do to look shabby when you're job hunting," the girl said. "Funny, though. If you didn't need a job, you wouldn't be looking for one. So really, they ought to give the jobs to the girls who look the shabbiest. They need it the most. Only they don't do things that way. That would be too sensible."

She turned her head and looked at Beatrice appraisingly. "I bet they'd take you on at Huntington's. You're just the type. Refined. Clean cut, good-looking. You don't look broke."

Her voice jeered. "They want a salesgirl selling 50-cent gloves to look like a deb. And you do. Let me take you down to Huntington's! I know they'd hire you!"

Nazi Heel Clicking and "Soccer Crisis" Bother British

There is a deluge of books on Britain; few will say more than the vivid, straight-from-the-shoulder account by Harvey Klemmer, "They'll Never Quit" (Wilfred Funk, $2.50). Klemmer, just returned from his post with the U. S. Embassy in London, writes a completely uncensored story of the battle of Britain. He was in more than 400 bombings, was machine-gunned by a German plane. You can still mail a letter in London in the afternoon, he reports, but he warns, "though Britain stands, whether or not she continues to stand depends largely on the United States." Samples of Klemmer's stories are excerpted here:

The Nazis, from all accounts, are inclined to be surly. They usually click their heels and give the Heil Hitler salute.

When I left London, people were telling a delightful story about the experience of a British officer in the Southeast. The officer, go tired of watching the Nazis click their heels. He accordingly told his men to take the Nazis' boots off before bringing them in. The result is said to be very funny.

People are always asking me what life is like in England today. The only answer I can make is that, although the outward forms have been greatly changed, the basic activities continue more or less as usual. The majority of the people, while they may sleep elsewhere, still live in their own homes. They still go to work, read their papers, attend the movies, listen to the radio and enjoy their favorite sports.

Footballers still strive for a goal. They may have to run for shelter before the match is over, but the important thing is that they continue to play.

There is still racing in England. I
